Dear John Kelly,

My name is Kimberly Reynolds, and I have had the privilege of knowing Michael Kesselring for over ten years. My husband and I first met Michael through recreational sports, and over time, we grew to know him not just as a teammate but as a trusted friend. He has been welcomed into our home on many occasions and has shared numerous holidays with our family, reflecting the closeness and trust we have developed with him over the years. Michael has also been around our children many times, and we have always trusted him completely in our home and around our family. His interactions have consistently been kind, appropriate, and respectful, and he has served as a positive role model to those around him.

In our experience, Michael has consistently demonstrated honesty, loyalty, and a good nature. He has been dependable in our interactions, always showing respect for others and carrying himself with integrity. Michael values personal growth and responsibility, holding himself to high standards both professionally and personally. He has consistently sought out the counsel of my husband or myself whenever he was trying to better himself or make difficult decisions.

The accusations he currently faces do not reflect the character we have seen throughout the past decade. Michael has always been respectful and considerate toward those around him, including his family and loved ones. He is supportive in his relationships, cares about the well-being of those close to him, and contributes positively to his community.

I want to stress that Michael is not a threat to the public. On the contrary, he has been a steady, responsible presence who is willing to help others whenever needed. Granting his release would allow him the chance to continue contributing positively while also giving him the opportunity to properly defend himself against these serious accusations.

I respectfully ask the Court to consider this testimony of his character when making your decision. I believe Michael will comply fully with all conditions and, when proven innocent, will use this difficult situation as motivation to grow even stronger and contribute positively to our community.

Thank you for your time and consideration. Please feel free to contact me at [REDACTED] or krreynolds23@gmail.com if you need any additional information.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Reynolds
